TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN,

QUOTES BY STEPHANIE CIME: AUDIO/VIRTUAL EXHIBITION @
HTTPS://CIME.BE/DROPS/

The Power of Intention: "Just as each drop contributes to the ocean's depth and beauty, our every action and every thought adds to the richness of the universe." Unity in Diversity: "Like drops of water in the ocean, we are all part of a greater whole, each with a distinct role to play and a specific light to shine. Drops are all different and unique, but there is no drop better than the other. Also, drops can change form. They are fluid. It's also my belief that with our intention, we can also change the way we influence reality. My intention is that the metaphor of the drops will guide the viewer understanding his or her place in the grand tapestry of life. Where the individual embraced their individuality while celebrating the unity that binds us all together. We are both a drop in the ocean and also an essential part of the magnificent whole, contributing our essence to the symphony of existence." The Power of the Subconscious in Healing: "Because if we tap into our subconscious mind, we can resolve traumas and heal ourselves. Because trauma is a psychic wound. And it keeps on influencing our life and making us sick." Overcoming Childhood Traumas: "And these moments of despair, it's also an opportunity to heal our past and to be a more full human, because without darkness, there can be no light." Unlocking True Potential: "It is my firm belief that within all of us there rests a deep desire, and also the full capacity of attaining these desires, as long as they come from the true selves, the authentic selves." Distinguishing Joy from Pleasure: "Our society makes us believe that pleasure and joy are interchangeable, which is not the case, because pleasure is related to dopamine and joy is related to serotonin, which are two different neurotransmitters." The Pursuit of Authentic Happiness: "Society tricks us in this way because it is a billion dollar business. To not see the difference between the two actually makes us unhappy. Because by always pushing the easy button out, we obstruct ourselves from really healing our traumas. We have come here for a purpose, and it's our mission to find our purpose. But first of all, we need to find out who we really are, regardless of the opinion of others, regardless of what society thinks of us. And joy is not to be found in the endless attainment of goals without knowing who we really are. The goals need to come from our true selves, regardless of societal defined goals or how society views success. I truly believe that it is possible for anyone on this planet to be happy, regardless of age, circumstances, and what we've been through." The Interconnectedness of Life: "You feel the beauty of being part of a greater whole while also honoring the uniqueness that makes you shine like a precious gem in this cosmic mosaic. Embrace the unity and diversity within and around you, knowing that you are both a drop of water and an integral part of the vast, boundless ocean of existence." Finding Your Life's Purpose: "Embrace the knowing that you are here with a unique mission, a gift to the world waiting to be shared."

SINCERELY,

STEPHANIE CIME
